Asset Allocation Changes and Market Commentary

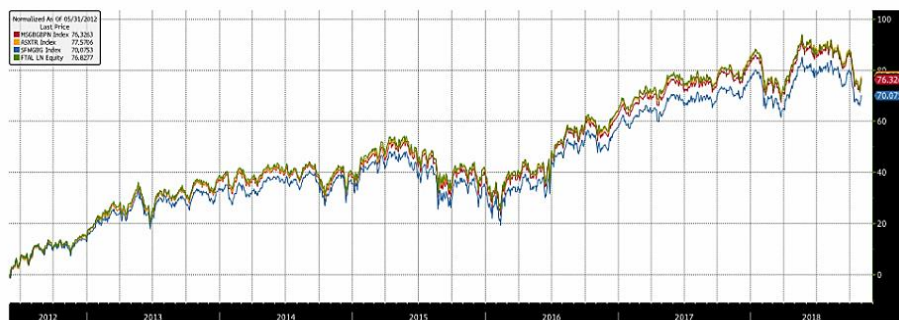

During October we reduced holding in a UK Corporate Bond ETF by 1.3% and switched into a US Floating Rate Note ETF, hedged back into sterling. Floating Rate Notes are bonds that have a variable coupon, equal to a money market reference rate, plus a quoted spread. Following the recent increases in interest rates these now look attractive compared to longer term UK sterling bonds as they offer an investment with a much shorter-term maturity (so less exposed to future rises), a higher credit rating but with an almost identical yield and cost:

	iShares USD Floating Rate Note (GBP Hedged)	iShares GBP corp bond ex financials
Maturity (years from now)	2.2 Years	14.5 Years
Yield to Maturity	2.97% pa	2.97% pa
S&P Credit Rating	A+	A-
Cost (including transaction costs)	0.2% pa	0.22% pa

On a separate point, with increased choice comes complexity. According to the FT, there are currently more than 3.7m different indexes, a rise of 438,000 in the last year. For example, within the UK equities ETF market, a Lyxor Core Morningstar UK ETF was launched with a Total Expense Ratio (TER) of 0.04% pa tracking a Morningstar UK index covering 97% of the UK market, and a L&G UK Equity ETF with a TER of 0.05% pa tracking the Solactive Core United Kingdom Large & Mid Cap Index. When we compared their underlying indexes against the traditional FTSE All-Share Index or our existing ETF tracking this index, the results are surprising. Our existing ETF (shown in green) has a higher TER of 0.2% pa, but it has (after costs) outperformed both the other two ETF underlying indexes (i.e. before costs), one by nearly 0.7% pa.

	Annualised Performance 31 st May 2012 to 31 st October 2018
MSGGBPN Index (Morningstar UK NR GBP)	+9.23% pa
ASXTR Index (FTSE All-Share Index Total Return)	+9.35% pa
SFWGBG Index (Solactive Core United Kingdom Large & Mid Cap Index TR)	+8.61% pa
FTAL LN Equity (SPDR FTSE UK All Share UCITS ETF)	+9.28% pa

Whether choosing bond or equity ETFs we apply the same principles, we choose the market or index first, then the cost second rather than the other way around.

Performance is based on the monthly performance of the first client discretionary portfolio after all charges. Individual client portfolios may differ due partly to differences in the timing of initial investment or withdrawals or rebalancing. The SCMP Long-Term Return (£) Benchmark is inflation (the return of the UK RPI All Items Index). Investing in Exchange Traded Funds may expose the investor to a number of risks, some of which are specific to Exchange Traded Funds and some of which are general investment risks. Discretionary portfolios are not subject to the same regulatory constraints as UCITS and other regulated funds.
